Because your home is more than just an investment...

Your home is central to your quality of life and should be a place of sanctuary that inspires the relaxation of your body and mind. It should be a place where you feel comfortable to share amazing times with family and friends as an extension of your personal style that celebrates your individuality.

And most importantly it should be built with equal attention given to aesthetics, functionality, and quality.

At Hedgewood, we take great pride in our philosophy that details don't just matter; they are the key to building homes which fully embody the statements above. Our use of premium materials constructed with the best proven techniques when married with our commitment to "elegance through function" are the primary attributes which set our builds apart.

Timeless yet modern, well-built yet beautiful, sustainable yet uncompromisingly comfortable...

With Hedgewood as your builder, these seemingly contradictory points converge for we specialize in providing solutions to meet the most challenging construction parameters.

Each project offers unique opportunities to apply our love of craftsmanship and the artistry of building a memorable home. We take pride in our commitment to building homes which are constructed with as much attention to detail in the spaces you will never see as they are in the finished living areas.

This special mix of quality and aesthetics are where old world attention to detail intersects with the best modern construction techniques.
